Introducing FPJ Education

Rapid change in the global economy was already a foregone conclusion even before Covid-19 became a pandemic. Now, the spectre of uncertainty stares people in the face. Jobs are disappearing rapidly. Ola and Uber which appeared formidable players just six months ago, now seem to wither away with travel by any form of public transport posing huge risks.

New skills are required, for new jobs yet to be created. New perspectives are needed.

At such times, students need to know what is happening – beyond textbooks. That is where FPJ Education comes in.

It is not a University. But it offers speakers who can address students – at no cost to select educational institutions – so that students are familiar with what is happening in the world of business, commerce and jobs. The idea is to give back to society a confidence about the future. Because that is where students of today will be tomorrow.

We offer – through Zoom webinars -- guest faculty for various topics, even arrange for industry leaders to interact with students.

We begin with a series on agriculture, which has accidentally become the nerve centre for the revival of the Indian economy. Some of the topics we hope to cover are

- Why agriculture matters for India.
- Milk is the backbone of India's rural wealth.
- The emerging wealth generator in farming us vegetables
- Rural distress and government doles
- The role of commodity markets.

Each topic will involve a talk for 45-90 minutes by a guest faculty. Then another half an hour interaction by an industry leader. These can be managed over 2-3 days, or can be managed on a single day itself. Final touches will be made after discussions with the educational institution.

We hope to follow this up with other similar series.

1. Water.
2. Media strategy and economic growth.
3. Geopolitics
4. The future of finance
5. The future of mobility ... and more

Do let us know which of the above you are interested in, and we will work out the details with you.

Ler's fortify ourselves for the future

Yours sincerely

July 2020

Dear Principal

-----

It give me immense pleasure to invite you, your faculty and your students to the SIES-FPJ webinar series on The Future of Agriculture. Attached is the programme schedule (as pdf and Jpg files). Each topic will then be advertised separately as well, with an invitation to participate.

The sessions will also be available as recorded sessions on YouTube for further reference or viewing.

The topic assumes significance because this year agriculture will assume center-stage in the Government's plans to effect an economic recovery for India.

What makes this series different is that it combines two parts.

First, there is a lecture by a guest faculty.

Then comes the second part -- an interaction with industry leaders in each key sector related to agriculture. The industry participants include NDDDB, NCDEX, The Israel headquartered Netafim, MCX, NSE, Alfa Laval, Bayer, the Netherlands headquartered East West Seeds, the Muthoot Pappachan Group, and the World Gold Council.

There are no costs involved. Admission for these courses is free, as the note from FPJ's management explains.

I am certain that the participants will gain immensely from the interactions. The participants will also be awarded certificates of participation for each session that they attend.

This is the first among other series that we plan organizing to remain relevant to students, academicians and the community at large. During this pandemic, when existing jobs may disappear, and students need to know what the new opportunities are, such webinars are one way of exposing them to trends in Indian and global industry.

On behalf of SIES and FPJ, I urge you to participate.

Also attached is a document which lists out other programmes FPJ has conducted on various topics in partnership with other educational institutions. And if you wish to look at the policy report booklets we have already published, you can download pdf copies from <https://www.freepressjournal.in/fpj-initiatives/the-free-press-journal-published-books>.

I look forward to your participation.

Yours faithfully
